Resolution:

It was considered pertinent to modify the response of the obliged subject and order him to carry out a new exhaustive search in which he would specifically consider the search criteria indicated in his manuals and guides, in the event of not locating it as indicated, formally declare the non-existence through his Transparency Committee.

What stands out about this matter is that the information was provided to the person who has a legitimate interest in requesting it, that is, to the daughter of the person on whom the autopsy was performed, in whose resolution the exhaustiveness of the response to the request was studied. Therefore, having analyzed the internal procedures of the obligated subject, it was determined that what was required was not completely provided.
